14.30 - 17.30, May 15, 2017, (Al Qasr A, Hilton Hotel, Jeddah)

Overview

- How do we achieve the Saudi Vision 2030?
- What is the secret behind Malaysian Economic Transformation?
- How do we make an effective Socio-Economic Transformation Program?
- Is Socio-Economic Transformation a goal or a tool?
- Achieving Human Well-being through Socio-Economic Transformation.

Countries have ambitious Development Strategies, Visions, Plans and Programs for the Socio-Economic Transformation of their nations in the face of today's prevailing global economic challenges. These Countries have adopted different approaches and mechanism for the development and implementation of these Transformation Visions based on their specific socio-economic peculiarities, economic structure and resource availability.

Governments around the world have established 'delivery units' to accelerate the implementation and monitoring of impact of its development interventions. The existence of such central unit would enable the authorities to keep track of progress on key priorities of transformation, and maintain consistency of actions towards such priorities and respond to outliers that might emerge.

This Seminar will provide a platform for participants and IDB Group Member Countries (MCs) to interact and share experiences while learning from the broad spectrum of tools and mechanisms that may assist in achieving socio-economic transformation. It aims to assist in exploring what works and what does not work. The event would highlight useful knowledge and lessons learned from the experience of the Malaysia and Kingdom of Saudi Arabia maintain effective delivery, and to achieve impactful and sustainable results from transformation initiatives.
